About the Conference

Ensuring the safety and efficacy of pharmaceuticals relies heavily on the quality of not just the active ingredients, but also the excipients. These inactive ingredients make up a significant portion of a medicine, playing critical roles in stabilizing the active component, enabling proper dosage forms, and ensuring effective delivery within the body. Utilizing high-quality excipients from certified manufacturers with well-defined properties minimizes the risk of interactions or unexpected effects, ultimately contributing to safe and reliable medications.

Join us for this premier in celebration of 10th year that will bring together professionals from the pharmaceutical and excipient segment to discuss the latest trends, regulations, innovations, and challenges.

The robust agenda featuring international Keynote speaker, highly thought-provoking panel discussions and technical sessions by experts will be highlight of the conference.

Who should attend?

- R&D and Formulation Professionals
