

Web Desk <webdesk@pharmexcil.com>

Fwd: Peru: Latin America's Macro Economic Star

appajipv@gmail.com <appajipv@gmail.com>
 To: Web Desk <webdesk@pharmexcil.com>
 Cc: ED Pharmexcil <ed@pharmexcil.com>

Wed, Jun 19, 2013 at 6:43 PM

Under Peru.

Dr appaji pv

Begin forwarded message:

From: Dherendra Oli <dherendrao@hotmail.com>
Date: 18 June 2013 12:04:41 PM EDT
Subject: Peru: Latin America's Macro Economic Star

Nice Article by Joachim Bamrud (CNN) about Peru's deep root growth in the region in yesteryears.

Found it worth reading & sharing!!!

Best regards,
 Dherendra Oli

Peru: Latin America's Macro Economic Star

Is Peru, the host of this week's World Economic Forum Latin America, a role model for the rest of the region?

Peru has become Latin America's macro-economic star, combining sustained high economic growth with low inflation.

Brazil's President Dilma Rousseff should take note as she tries to fight inflation in Latin America's largest economy.

For the past five years, Peru has had Latin America's best macro-economic environment, according to a Latinvex analysis of data from the International Monetary Fund. It has had the region's second-lowest inflation despite having the second-highest GDP growth rate.

Peru's economy grew on average 6.5 percent in the 2008-12 period, while its inflation reached an average of 3.5 percent. Although Panama has led GDP growth the past five years (8.6 percent), its inflation has also been higher than Peru's (5.3 percent). And while El Salvador has led the way in low inflation in the 2008-12 period (3.2 percent), it is also the economy that had the worst performance in the period, growing a mere 0.6 percent on average.

Peru is expected to see Latin America's second-lowest inflation rate this year as well, according to another analysis from Latinvex.

As a result of its strong GDP growth and low inflation, Peru is expected to have Latin

